

A. A. F. Cleaning

Regular kitchen exhaust system maintenance, carried out by a cleaning professional, is vital for the safe and effective operation of every commercial kitchen, not to mention keeping your insurer happy.

Without regular filter exchange, professional canopy and exhaust cleaning, thick fatty grease builds up, seriously impacting the performance of your kitchen's exhaust system.

Unmaintained exhaust systems affect your kitchen's operating environment, increasing health and safety risks. They can lead to air pollution, breaching of Australian Standards, rejected insurance claims and devastating fires.

Don't let your kitchen become a risky business.

Complete kitchen exhaust system cleaning

Choose A.A.F. Cleaning for a comprehensive exhaust system cleaning service. We do it all, so you can breathe easy, knowing that your kitchen is safe and performing at its best.

Our service includes:

- A complete scrape clean of your system (from top to bottom)
- Cleaning of fans and chimneys
- Filter maintenance and exchange

Here's what exhaust systems look like, before and after our services.

Cleaning to Australian & International Standards

AAF cleaning professionals are fluent with Australian Standards surrounding the cleaning of commercial kitchens.

We will ensure that all cleaning is carried out to meet the requirements of AS 1851-2012, which details the routine servicing of fire protection systems and equipment.

With us you have the peace-of-mind of knowing that your kitchen is cleaned and maintained professionally and up to every challenge. We are locals and right here with you whenever you need us.

Breathe easy with Advance Air Filter Cleaning

Commercial kitchen exhaust systems are engineered to generate clean air flow, while extracting cooking vapour, steam and particulates.

The exhaust fan draws contaminated air through the grease filters in the canopy, into the duct work, before expelling it from the building.

With regular maintenance and cleaning from us, your exhaust system will perform at its best, delivering clean, fresh air to your business, your staff and customers.

Your partners in Grime